Micro:bit

"We happily give children paint brushes when they're young, with no experience - it should be exactly the same with technology," Sinead Rocks, Head of BBC Learning

Coding is a basic literacy in the digital age, and it is important for kids to understand and be able to work with and understand the technology around them. Having children learn coding at a young age prepares them for the future.

The Kindergarten Starters is introducing BBC micro:bit for KG2-Grade 5 students. The BBC micro:bit is all about young people learning to express themselves digitally, and it's their device to own. It aims to inspire young people to get creative with digital and develop core skills in science, technology and engineering.
